Style A (Default)

[...] Every gun that is made, every warship launched, every rocket fired signifies, in the final sense, a theft from those who hunger and are not fed, those who are cold and are not clothed.

Style B (Document)

This world in arms is not spending money alone.

It is spending the sweat of its laborers, the genius of its scientists, the hopes of its children.

Chemical Weapons Convention (CWC)

The Chemical Weapons Convention prohibits the large-scale use, development, production, stockpiling and transfer of chemical weapons and their precursors. It entered into force in 1997 and is administered by the Organisation for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons (OPCW).

UN Security Council Resolution 1540

One of the documents adopted in the wake of the terrorist attacks of 11 September 2001 to deny terrorist entities access to biological, chemical or nuclear weapon technologies by means of appropriate domestic legislative measures. With respect to chemical weapons the resolution essentially reiterates the relevant national obligations in the Chemical Weapons Convention, but extends the requirement for national laws and regulations to states not party to the treaty too.
